Study-Specific Information and Consent

To Renounce Liberty? A Public-Goods Experiment on (Un)Democratic Reversal

Janne Tukiainen | janne.tukiainen@utu.fi | Version 2.6 – proposed amendment | 20 October 2026

Participants receive ~~the host laboratory's~~ UTU Choice Lab's UTU RPP/TOKA general participation rules and privacy information when registering with its participant system. The following short confirmation concerns this particular study and appears before any practice or paid decision.

Study: To Renounce Liberty? A Public-Goods Experiment on (Un)Democratic Reversal. One approximately 60-minute session with ~~anonymous interaction~~ interaction without on-screen names in five-person groups. Participants remain in a matching pool of ~~10 or 15~~ 5, 10, or 15 and complete ~~two blocks of ten paid rounds~~ ten paid rounds in Block 1 and five in Block 2. Larger pools are reshuffled each round; a five-person pool plays together throughout. Payment is EUR 10 plus a decision-based bonus of up to EUR 5.

Participation is voluntary. Foreseeable risks are minimal and consist mainly of waiting in an interactive task and possible mild discomfort with a fictional crisis, unequal point allocations, or optional questions about political views and past party vote. The interface uses a participant code. ~~The host laboratory keeps identifying recruitment and payment information separate and gives researchers only coded data. The research team never receives any temporary identity-to-code link; the host laboratory removes it after payment under its procedure.~~ UTU RPP/TOKA keeps registration and attendance information separately and does not receive oTree codes, experimental responses, or payment information. The research team makes immediate payments using a separate code-and-amount list, which is deleted after payment reconciliation. Further details appear in the participant information sheet and privacy notice.
